FIRST TOPIC: CONTENT ANALYSIS AND CRITICAL THINKING — AN ASSESSMENT STUDY

The TALOE Partnership announces a series of webinars entitled "Talks on E-assessment and Learning Outcomes" organised by one of the partners, University Computing Centre SRCE.

The first lecture of this series is to be held on 21st January 2015 starting at 11.00 CET with the title of "Content analysis and critical thinking — An assessment study" by Antonella Poce, researcher and lecturer in experimental pedagogy at the University Roma Tre, Italy. She is going to speak about the project of the University Roma Tre that constructed a model to increase critical thinking skills and ways how to evaluate them.

The monthly series is suggested for educators, educational developers, staff in learning support and those with responsibility for the management and quality assurance of assessment with the aims of:

• putting in focus the learning outcomes and assessment methods in e-learning;
• helping teachers and trainers decide on the e-assessment tools and processes;
• enhancing the quality of the education process and improving student's learning experience;
• encouraging the academic community to network, exchange experience and to cooperate.

You can comment the first topic and put questions to the presenter in advance here.

Participants can join the webinar at https://connect.srce.hr/taloe_webinars/ without previous registration.
