

THE AUSTRALIAN EMBASSY PRESENTS:

The Naked Scientists in Croatia - Live Science!

A SCIENCE AFFAIR

*Dr Chris Smith, from the world-famous Naked Scientists podcast and BBC radio programme, will perform a live scientific spectacular for the Croatian public on October 25th 2017 in Zagreb.

Where: LECTURE HALL A2,
DEPARTMENT OF CHEMISTRY,
PMF, HORVATOVAC 102A,
ZAGREB

When: 18:30. WEDNESDAY
OCTOBER 25TH 2017

Who: SUITABLE FOR ALL
AUDIENCES AGED 9 TO 99!

KIDS WILL DEFINITELY LOVE THIS...

Language: ENGLISH

Explaining the science of explosions, the physics of light and the chemistry of the extremely cold, prepare to be dazzled and informed by this entertaining sequence of science experiments and demonstrations.

This is also your chance to meet Chris and find out the answers to the science questions you've always wanted to ask.

Alongside Chris, space scientist Jacinta Delhaize, from the Department of Physics, University of Zagreb, will take you on a virtual tour of the Universe.

Australian Embassy
Zagreb - Croatia

British Embassy
Zagreb

brandlook

Chris Smith is a scientist, a medical consultant and a radio presenter for the BBC. The Naked Scientists podcast, which he runs, is based at Cambridge University and explains exciting, ground-breaking science to the general public. The multi-award-winning podcast has received over 65 million downloads world-wide and is one of the world's most popular science shows. For more information, please visit <https://www.thenakedscientists.com>

The 'Naked Scientists in Croatia' event is supported by the Australian Embassy in Croatia and partners including the UK Embassy in Croatia, the University of Zagreb Faculty of Science and the Ruder Bošković Institute.